KITLV OUTLINE AND ACCESS	16

INTRODUCTION

The Caribbean has a turbulent, and often disconcerting history, a dynamic culture, and challenging economic and political futures. It is an extraordinarily multifaceted area with its many languages, population groups, and nations. It is also a region that has long and close connections with the Netherlands - Aruba, Curaçao, St. Maarten, the so-called BES- islands, and Suriname in particular. Past and present migration patterns continue to nurture intimate connections between Caribbean and Dutch societies.

In 2020 the KITLV/Royal Netherlands Institute of Southeast Asian and Caribbean Studies will organize the 34th Interuniversity Course Caribbean Studies. In this course we will discuss history, politics, economics and socio-cultural topics. Topics to be discussed include ecology, colonialism, slave trade and slavery, indentured labour, small-holding and the post-plantation economy, migration and trans-nationalism, intellectual history, gender, kinship and sexuality, art, literature, music, decolonization, local politics, tourism, and international relations.

The course will be offered in English. Participation is open to students from all universities and to a limited number of interested non-students.

COURSE STRUCTURE AND LITERATURE

The course is divided into seven thematic blocs. Each bloc is taught over a two-week period and is comprised of a series of 3 lectures and 1 round table discussion. Lecturers come from a variety of disciplinary backgrounds and broach a series of topics.

Each thematic bloc is accompanied by a set of required readings; by one or several questions for students to bear in mind while reading; and by one or several propositions. The readings are meant to complement the lectures and are compulsory. The questions and propositions serve to stimulate debate during the round table discussions, and do not necessarily represent the lecturers' views.

The required readings for the course are divided into 3 types:

1. For each roundtable discussion, students are expected to have read the related chapter of Understanding the Contemporary Caribbean, as well as the articles listed for that week in the course schedule. These are intended as preparation for classes. The articles are accessible online via the Leiden University Catalogue. Students should secure a copy of Understanding the Contemporary Caribbean. The book is available via the library or for sale online and in second hand book stores.

KITLV OUTLINE AND ACCESS

KITLV/Royal Netherlands Institute of Southeast Asian and Caribbean Studies

The KITLV/Royal Netherlands Institute of Southeast Asian and Caribbean Studies was founded in 1851 with the aim of promoting the study of social sciences and linguistics, including history, of Southeast Asia, the Pacific, and the Caribbean.

The KITLV is a world-class research institute for the study of Southeast Asia and the Caribbean, with a focus on Indonesia and the 'Dutch' Caribbean, in an interdisciplinary and comparative perspective. Benefitting from the unrivalled collections offered on campus by Leiden University, KITLV researchers explore (dis)continuities between the (pre)colonial and postcolonial period, and articulate their research agendas empirically and theoretically in order to advance wider debates on the meandering paths of globalization. KITLV engages with the academic community across the world, as well as with (inter)national governmental organizations, NGOs, the media, and the interested general public. KITLV is an institute of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences (KNAW).

The KITLV publishes the oldest journal on the Caribbean - the New West Indian Guide/Nieuwe West-Indische Gids (1919).
