Areas of Expertise: power and politics in water, land, and environmental governance; political economy and political ecology of natural resources governance across scales; policy and institutional analysis at the interface of water, food, climate, and energy; transboundary water governance; critical agrarian studies; upland farming and irrigated agriculture; farming system analysis; food systems transformation

EMPLOYMENT HISTORY

Jan 2022 – present | Director of the Royal Netherlands Institute of Southeast Asian and the Caribbean Studies (KITLV) The Netherlands | Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences (KNAW) | Provide scientific leadership and strategic guidance for the overall institute's work in line with KNAW's strategies; identify key research areas that respond to the wider societal issues in Southeast Asia, the Caribbean and the Netherlands; develop research programs through collaborative partnerships; represent KITLV both within the Academy and in national and international bodies; foster collaborative research networks nationally and globally including through science communication to optimize impacts of the institute's research activities on societies; and responsible for the general and day-to-day management of the institute.

July 2022 – present | Professor by special appointment of Natural Resource Governance, Climate and Equity at the Cultural Anthropology and Development Sociology (CADS), Faculty of Social Science, Leiden University | Represent, co-lead, and coordinate the research and teaching topics on natural resource governance, climate, and equity in Southeast Asian societies; build on and expand the current research and teaching on Sociology, Sustainability and Southeast Asia as well as on issues of equity and diversity; develop research-driven teaching programs in the university-wide research program Urban Transitions runs by the Indonesië Regio Groep; supervise Master and PhD students; develop research collaborations in Southeast Asia and Europe especially on the topics of sustainability, water management and citizenship.

Jan 2014 – Dec 2021 | Senior Researcher-Policy and Institutions, Research Group Leader Governance and Inclusion (since 2016/2017) Lao PDR | International Water Management Institute, Southeast Asia Regional Office | Provide scientific leadership, strategic direction and quality assurance on IWMI's governance and inclusion work; design and manage a portfolio of research program on political economy of water-land-energy-environmental governance in Asia and Africa; conduct research on natural resource governance across scales, agrarian change, migration, and rural development; represent IWMI's governance and transboundary work in Southeast Asia, South Asia, Africa and globally; serve as IWMI's focal point of governance and inclusion; (co)manage IWMI research staff under the Research Group; capacity building, fund raising, and project management.

Sept 2010 – Dec 2013 | Researcher-Social Scientist Lao PDR | International Water Management Institute, Southeast Asia Regional Office | Lead and conduct research on natural resource governance (water, land and ecosystem) across scales (transboundary, national, local), and how it is linked with processes of regional economic integration especially pertaining to large-scale infrastructure development as shaped by various forms and patterns of foreign direct investments in South and Southeast Asia (China, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, Cambodia, Myanmar, Nepal). Unpack structural and systemic challenges in natural resources governance through better understanding of existing power structure, relationships, and political processes, and how these are embedded in the resettled communities' coping strategies within the context of hydropower development, farm households' livelihood options in agricultural groundwater use and forest conservation, among others. Conduct farming system analysis while unpacking key drivers of agrarian change and its implications for the overall shaping of farm households' strategies within the wider context of rural development.

Sept 2008 – August 2010 | Post-Doctoral Fellow in Political Ecology - Lao PDR | International Water Management Institute, Southeast Asia Regional Office | Conduct multi-level policy and institutional analysis (transboundary, national, local) of water governance in the Lower Mekong Basin (Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, Cambodia), focusing on hydropower development in relation with the wider geopolitical context.

1999 - 2002 | Research Associate (part time)– Egypt | Royal Netherlands Embassy | Work with local communities and government partners to conduct local-level institutional analysis of Water User Associations and mainstream gender portfolio into national water policies
